

Indexes and Databases at the Consortium Library

Welcome APU Students, Faculty and Staff!

The APU/UAA Consortium Library has over 150 online article indexes and databases. These include literally hundreds of thousands of items, with many available in full text. Some of the resources include:

- Wilson Select Plus, a database of over 300,000 magazine and journal articles
- Specialized databases such as CSA's ASFA: Aquatic Sciences and Fisheries, PSYCHInfo, or Wilson Business Abstracts
- Full-text newspapers, including the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Washington Post, Seattle Times, the Oregonian, and the Anchorage Daily News
- Electronic journals via JSTOR, Project Muse, and Science Direct
- There are many, many more ...

To access the 150 plus databases, go to: <http://www.lib.uaa.alaska.edu/webgroup/articles.html>

Best yet, it is now possible for APU students, staff, and faculty to search almost all of the available databases via the Internet. This means you can access these resources from your home, office, or from anywhere you access the Internet.

However, when accessing these resources off-campus, authentication is required. What this means is you must give the APU Registrar's Office permission to provide the Consortium Library staff your APU student number and your last name. Consortium Library staff will then include your student number and last name in our authentication system.

Once a last name and student number is in the authentication system, APU students can access all the great Consortium Library databases by merely (when prompted) typing their last name (no spaces, hyphens, or capital letters) as a user name, and then keying in their APU number as a password.

The Consortium Library is pleased to provide a wealth of information for the APU community both on campus and from the far reaches of the Internet. If you have any questions or difficulty connecting to the Consortium Library databases, contact Web librarian John Iliff at 786.4628 or via email at afji@uaa.alaska.edu.
